

What Men Dream Of

Gary Taylor (January 1 2007)

We who bleed in war against the orks of this world to raise our daughters in virtue We are men and we too have dreams So what do all men dream of?

to fight within a ring of mortals fine to win against bad odds to gain victory and bring it home in an ern peace and pour it out all over those they love that's what some men dream of to crawl and search through the deeps of mystery and find an answer for a question that everyone needs to know to bring it home in a book of grace and read it to those they love

to write or paint or sculpt a work that lights on fine from within a heart and opens the eyes to map a way that's back from Scrooge's grave

to feel a wind blow hard a ridge as he mounts an icy col or breath the sweat from a noble beast as they cantor between the rocks

but to feel The Wind blows through the skin and wears away the stone to feel The Wind stings bad the eyes and lights away the gray or smell the breath of Our Lady Fair and love away our fear that's what all Men dream of
